INTRODUCTION

July 2nd, 1921.

Honorable Meredith P. Snyder, Chairman,
And the Board of Police Commissioners.

Gentlemen:

In accordance with the provisions of the City Charter I have had prepared for presentation to the Honorable City Council, at its meeting on the second week of July, the report of the operations of the Police Department for the year ending June 30th, 1921, and have the honor to submit the same herewith for your inspection.

The facts and figures set forth, as called for by the Charter provisions, eloquently attest to the fact that the members of the Department during the year just ended have fully realized the honorable responsibility resting upon them as the guardians of the lives and property of their fellow citizens. As a body, they have faithfully borne the heavy burden with a valiant spirit. I have had to drop some of the unfit members from the roll, but I have not been called upon to discharge any officer for cowardice.

When I assumed the responsibility of the office of Chief of Police, I told you gentlemen, and the public, in an open statement, what I believed needed to be done to give the people of Los Angeles the police protection which the inhabitants of a city of three-quarters of a million population are entitled to. Let us examine this statement and see what has been accomplished.

One of the things adverted to was the activity of bunco men and pickpockets, whose reported depredations had run up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. I told you that I was going to let these gentry know, unmistakably, that their presence in Los Angeles was not desired, and that if they remained they need expect nothing but unremitting warfare whenever their activities were apparent. Since that day the Police Department has not received a single complaint of the operations of a professional bunco man in Los Angeles. Such persons have been seen and noticed in hotels and other public places, and we have received information as to their comings and goings, but if they have despoiled any resident of Los Angeles of his property in this period, that person has not brought the fact to our attention. Furthermore, Detective Sergeant C. A. Jones, who has been for some years assigned to duty in the District Attorney's office, has informed me that no such complaint has reached that office, so far as his knowledge extended.

We have had complaints of the operations of pickpockets. Some of them undoubtedly were founded upon the operations of professional thieves, while the others were chargeable to the acts of other dishonest persons. Many losses suffered in crowded mercantile and other establishments are not really caused by the act of a professional thief. For example, a woman shopper will lay her purse or pocketbook down for a moment, only to find when she turns to pick it up that it is gone, and in the excitement will jump to the conclusion that someone has stolen the money from her purse or bandbag, while in fact the depredation was the result of an impulsive action of a dishonestly inclined shopper, who had never before yielded to temptation. Again, a purse may fall from an insecurely fastened hand-bag while the owner is walking along a crowded street and be picked up by some one who makes no effort to return it to its owner. All such losses are reported to us as "pickpocket jobs," and we so enter them until we have definitely ascertained the facts to be otherwise.

There were, however, some pickpockets living in Los Angeles, and we have received reports indicating operations of gangs of such on the street cars and sidewalks. In our constant effort to hamper the activity of these thieves we have been successful to a gratifying degree. In accordance with my promise I arranged to have pictures of those known to be here, published in the newspapers day by day, and by an offer of a reward made to our youthful citizens for information as to their whereabouts gave them advertising of a sort not desired by them. A number have been arrested and prosecuted, others have left town, and yet others have not apparently indulged their criminal propensities here.

While from the nature of the offence it is very difficult to secure evidence, in some prosecutions under way we have reason to hope that the defendant's street car trip may be the start of a journey which will end at the doors of the State's prison.

The Inadequacy of the Force

The fundamental fault with the Department is its gross inadequacy of numbers. Year after year the city has forged ahead, developing its commercial, manufacturing and social activities, with no corresponding development of the numerical strength of the Department.

When you attempt to carry a two-ton load on a one-ton truck you cannot hope to transport the load properly—the overloading is the cause of so many breakdowns. I have had many suggestions made to me by public-spirited citizens, who are desirous of having the Department operate in the most efficient manner possible, but all of them ignore these physical factors. In the last decade the development of the motor car has brought about a condition of congestion on the thoroughfares which imperatively calls for the detailing of officers for the directing of traffic. The great interest shown by young and old in this new means of transportation has also had the resultant effect of greatly increasing the number of offences. I do not refer to infractions of the traffic rules, but to the thefts of machines and their parts and accessories, and to the misuse of the motor car by careless and reckless drivers in such manner as to greatly increase the hazards of human life. The number of deaths attributable to the reckless handling of these marvelous mechanical successors of the horse-drawn vehicles is appalling. Again the motor car brought an invaluable aid to the hold-up man in making his escape. A party of hoodlums can hold up several pedestrians and be outside the city before the first dazed victim has been able to make a report of his misfortune.

Prior to the advent of the automobile, and during the wonderful development of this most useful instrument of progress, there was a fixed relation between the population of any given community and the number of crimes committed therein annually.

For each year one could count with certainty on there being so many burglaries, so many assaults, so many thefts and so many cases of homicidal deaths. This is true of Los Angeles. Examination of the Department record of the olden years will show a steady increase of reported offenses proportionate to the increase of population. We can justly say that whenever one thousand people are added to the population a reasonable amount of additional law-breaking can be expected. When we then add to these figures the increase above referred to, related in one way or the other to the motor car, it should be apparent to any thoughtful person that the load put on the Police Department is many times more than it was years ago; and yet in that period only three hundred persons have been added to its strength.

Now, there are only so many hours in the day, and the average man can do, and can reasonably be expected to do, only so much; and it is the average man with whom we have to deal, for the policeman is only one of our citizens who has been chosen to guard the well disposed of the community against the evilly inclined residents of the city. The members of the Los Angeles Police Department, as well as those engaged in other lines of human effort in this progressive city, will eagerly welcome ways and methods of improving the service which they are called upon to render to the public; but not the most highly trained efficiency expert can ever devise a way of performing the physically impossible task of having one man simultaneously in three different places, and that is about what we are trying to do with things as they are now.

I knew these things when I took up the work, but instead of struggling along under these adverse conditions and only pointing to these facts when the Department was being subjected to criticism on the part of the public, I believed I could render no more important service to the city, and to the Department, which is a part of it, than to place the real situation clearly before the minds of the citizens themselves.

For the last ten or twelve years, and while the population of the city has nearly trebled, the membership of the Police Department has not even doubled. We have, roughly, seven hundred and fifty persons called upon to protect over seven hundred thousand residents, and this number includes everybody. Patrolmen, Detectives, Sergeants, the higher officers and the clerical force. Under the law each member of the Department is entitled to a fortnight's vacation, and to four days off during each month; and, as police service is required to be rendered every hour of the twenty-four during the day, thus necessitating the dividing of the available force into eight-hour day watches, the number on duty at any given time is in truth pitifully small, especially when the vast area of Los Angeles is taken into consideration. The limits of Los Angeles embrace more than three hundred square miles. A municipal area comparable only to that of Greater New York, which for the year of 1919 had a budget quota of uniformed force, of all ranks, of ten thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven. New York, of course, has a vastly greater population than we have, and a population which is more densely concentrated; but comparing our area, population and police force with the other ten American cities of the first rank, we are right now short about eight hundred men.

It was believed (and the events proved the correctness of the belief) that the people of a community such as Los Angeles, with its high average of American intelligence, needed only to learn the truth in respect to these matters to be willing to take the steps necessary to remedy the condition. Because of the financial condition of the city, any present appeal to the City Council must necessarily prove unavailing.

Instead, then, of wasting the time of the gentlemen of that body, I carried the message directly to the public in addresses before improvement associations, lunch and dinner clubs, fraternal organizations and religious bodies. In all, some thirty thousand persons were thus spoken to, in addition to carrying on the routine and ordinary work of the Department. This work has borne results. A select committee of the Chamber of Commerce, after a full hearing, recommended to the Board of Directors of that body that the passage of a resolution endorsing a Charter amendment, raising the tax limit to an amount sufficient to enable the Council to employ 800 more officers. The Directors approved the report and it is now a matter of record in the Council files. Legal obstacles prevented the submission of this question to the people at the recent election, but whenever it can be so submitted I am confident that the people will promptly put the seal of approval upon the measure, especially as every newspaper published locally will co-operate, I am sure from expressions of the publishers on the subject, in a campaign of education along these lines, immediately preceding the determination of the question.

MERIT SYSTEM

A very great deal of time and labor has been devoted to the founding and development of a merit system for estimating the capability and recording the activities of members of the Department. All the books available locally, from public and private sources, have been examined, and many interviews have been had with the proper officials, of steam and transportation companies with respect to the systems made use of by their respective organizations. It was realized that the subject was so important that no amount of time and thought given to it could be considered disproportionate to other problems of the administration.

Some form of marking the personal record of its members is, and has always been, in use in every police department. Various plans have been tried with varying results. From the nature of things this important feature of police administration presents difficulties which are not apparent in other lines of human effort. In commercial, manufacturing and other industrial activities a number of forms of bonus systems have proven valuable aids in developing the industry of those employed there. These systems, however, were based upon pecuniary remunerations for faithful work done, and for that reason are not in their usual form adaptable for use in a police department where the salary for each rank and grade is rigidly fixed by law.

For many years the city of Los Angeles has enjoyed the benefits of the Civil Service provisions of the Charter, and these provisions for the most part were applicable to those employed in the Police Department. This city is furthermore fortunate in having had serving upon the Civil Service Commission a splendid type of public spirited citizens. At the same time the difficulty in determining the relative fitness of a number of applicants for promotion, by an examination, however well devised, covering only a few hours, is apparent. It has always been the desire of the Civil Service Commission that this Department should, by furnishing such reports as were available as to applicants for positions, assist that body in forming a just conclusion as to the merits of the applicants.

If one is not in position to directly reward a meritorious act or course of conduct in a material way, it seems logical to do another thing which does not call for the expenditure of any sum of money but which has a powerful effect in stimulating any human being to put forth his best efforts, and that is, to praise him when he has done a praiseworthy thing. If, in addition to the pleasurable glow of the heart which follows the sound of commendatory words, the fact of the praising is recorded permanently, and in such manner as to cause it to have a bearing on his efforts to raise himself along the ladder of promotion, we have furnished a real incentive to fidelity to duty.

Other systems of personal record in the Department in years past have been used only as an aid to disciplinary punishment, and therefore might more properly be termed "demerit" systems. A plan which merely charges a man with black marks for lapses of duty without making some provision for white marks (to coin a figure of speech), seems neither fair nor just.

Accordingly, the plan finally adopted as feasible contemplates a credit and debit account with each member of the department, showing on the left his misdeeds, if any, and on the right hand a record of his meritorious acts and faithful service. Moreover, to make the same more easy of comprehension and to strike a balance in comparing any one man's marks with that of his fellows, these marks on either side of the ledger are given a numerical value. The plan has been approved, but put into use in a tentative form so that the best method of its application can be determined, by the best test possible, namely the test of actual use. It was realized that to institute a plan calling for an elaborate system based solely upon theoretical consideration, might, and probably would hinder, rather than help, the development of the idea. In this, if the first attempt proved seriously faulty, the discouraging effect might be noted upon the personnel of the department. It was realized that any system of this sort to be practically successful must be one which is readily understood by every member of the Department, so that any suspicion of injustice or favoritism of its application can be instantly allayed by exhibiting to every member of the Department at any time his own score.

Whenever, by the passage of a reasonable length of time, this system has been operated to the point where the mass of the Department is convinced as to its fairness, it will be a simple matter to persuade the Civil Service Commission to assign a very great, if not, indeed, a balancing weight to this record. If this commendation is brought about the result will be, in effect, that each man can raise himself by his own efforts, and for his slipbacks or final discharge from the Department, has no one to blame but himself.

A great deal of interest in this plan has been already noted among the Department. In the beginning of this survey each member was asked to make a confidential report to the Chief, reciting briefly the facts concerning the instance of police work performed by him during the calendar year 1920, which he, in his own name, considered most meritorious. The reports received in answer to this order were highly interesting, and the stimulating effects upon the men of the Department were readily apparent. These replies were classified according to the promptness in which they were answered, and the aptitude and interest shown in their manner of expression. When this had been done and the proper entries made, the Sergeants, who by reason of their close relationship with the great majority of the members of the Department constitute a highly important part of the police machine, were called upon themselves to make report covering the department and the activities of the men under them in the performance of their duties. The order calling for this report reads as follows:

Printed forms will be distributed to facilitate the gathering and recording of the information necessary for the records of this System. Under the head of Department will be considered the points of Personal Appearance: Uniform, shoes, badge, person, clean or unshaven, etc.

Personal Conduct: Courtesy and politeness in dealing with the public and fellow officers, and general habits.

Punctuality and the manner in which the work is performed will call for consideration, not alone of promptness in reporting for duty, but in obedience to orders and vigilance in performing the work. The most effective factor in bringing about a general condition of vigilance being in mental and physical alertness while on duty.

Especially acts, whether meritorious or the opposite, will be noted without very much difficulty, but this preliminary notice is given in order that the Sergeants, particularly, may prepare themselves to more closely observe the work of the officers under them (if such preparation be necessary), so that when their markings of their subordinates are being considered by Superior Officers, a just value may be placed upon the work of the Sergeants themselves, because the Merit System contemplates a rating of the Commanding Officers from Sergeants up to the grade of Inspector, quite as well as those officers who are filling the grade of Patrolman.

A nother order which was issued read as follows:

SPECIAL ORDER NO. 19

To Division Commanders:

Have the Sergeants under your command fill out the information for the beginning of the Merit System, upon the printed blanks provided for that purpose, which are distributed today. Instruct them to use great care in this work as it is of the utmost importance to the whole department. What is sought, is an absolutely JUST appraisal of every officer's official activities, so far as this result is humanly possible. The work should be done as nearly impersonally as may be. Personal prejudices, likes and dislikes should not be present in the mind of the Sergeant when he is engaged upon this task. If an officer is not giving the best that is in him to the Department, a Sergeant has no right to gloss this fact over because of his personal friendship for the Patrolman. A man who is not day by day performing his duty to the best of his ability is not, in point of fact, true to himself; and a superior officer who, for personal considerations, fails to mark this defect of character is not alone not true to himself, but is shirking the responsibilities which he assumed when he accepted promotion. On the other hand a Sergeant who would allow his judgment to be swayed by any personal (as distinguished from official) differences between himself and the officer, would not only fail in the performance of his duty but would be guilty of a positive injustice to the officer; and injustice is the one thing that all of us, in every rank and grade, from Patrolman up, should constantly guard against. The task thus imposed upon officers in the grade of Sergeant is an onerous one, but there is no task or duty devolving upon them which is of greater importance to the Police Department as a whole. The Sergeants themselves are to be judged by the Lieutenants and they should bear this fact in mind while performing their duties in respect of the Patrolmen.

The Lieutenants will make similar reports in respect of the Sergeants under them and all that is said above as to the manner in which the Sergeants shall perform this duty applies in greater force to the Lieutenants; because, while this fact is frequently lost sight of, with increased authority comes a corresponding weight of responsibility. In addition to marking the Sergeants generally, the Lieutenants will obtain from the Sergeants, when the Sergeants have completed this work, the Sergeants' reports on the Patrolmen. The Lieutenants will then themselves go over the Sergeants' work and when they have done so will submit all of the reports to the Division or Bureau Commander who will, after he has given sufficient thought and attention to the reports to enable him to certify that they are as nearly fair and impartial as he is able to obtain from his subordinates, forward them to the Department Inspector, together with his own personal reports upon the Lieutenants under him. The Department Inspector will personally submit them to the Chief for final action.

All of these reports should be in the office of the Department Inspector at nine o'clock on the morning of April 25th.

Where an officer has been transferred within the last three months his former superiors will forward the report as well as those under whom he is now working.

LYLE PENDEGAST,
Chief of Police.

When these reports were received in due course, markings were made accordingly, and the plan contemplates bi-monthly or more frequent repetition of this survey. In the interim any special mention or meritorious act will be commended by publication in The Daily Police Bulletin, if considered sufficiently important, and any infraction of discipline when carefully inquired into will result in demerit marks according to the gravity of the offence. Furthermore, as soon as the school of instruction is again in smooth working order, the department and interest shown and the progress made by each student of the school will find its final repository in the files of the merit system. Time alone will tell and in what manner and degree the system may be developed within the Department and to its task of serving the public.

PAY STANDARD UNCHANGED

The standard of pay of the officers employed in the Department has neither been increased nor diminished this year.

During the period of the war, and prior to the latest increase of the pay, it was extremely difficult for many of the officers to make both ends meet on the pay then provided by the city. Since the first of the year, however, with the decline in the market prices of the necessities of life and the consequent increase of the purchasing value of each dollar of the salary now provided, the pay is commensurate with the duties expected of the men of the Department. There are some inequalities and such injustice ought to be rectified.

UNIFORMS

An effort was made to have provisions placed in the budget for the forthcoming year, covering the furnishing of uniforms to the men of the Department at the expense of the city. For the city to buy cloth of a good quality and have the tailoring done by its own tailors is the only way to secure a uniformity of attire. Individual idiosyncrasy will manifest itself if each officer is called upon to provide at his own expense and in his own way the uniform in which he is to present himself before the public. The psychological effect of a good uniform, both as to the wearer and upon the public, is of great value in making for efficiency on the part of members of the Department and comparatively small expense entailed by the furnishing of the uniforms at the city's expense is overbalanced. The City Council, however, considered the proposition to be one in the nature of an increase in pay, and considering it as such determined that it was not possible at present in view of the city's financial condition.

DRIVES FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES

During the years of the war the public became very familiar with the organized and systematic drives made to raise funds for various relief and charitable purposes. Many of the plans of these drives called for the active participation of men of the Police Department. In some instances persons violating the traffic ordinances were given the alternative of contributing to the object of the drive then under way, or being haled into court for their infraction. However appropriate these methods may have been in the stress of war conditions, I felt that public sentiment has now turned against such means of promoting objects even of the most meritorious nature, and believed that the members of the Department could best serve the community, especially in view of the paucity of their numbers, by devoting their whole time and energy while on duty to the performance of police work, without allowing their minds to become distracted by any such outside interest. Accordingly I was compelled to refuse the co-operation of the Department, though these causes are most worthy of themselves.

However, members of the Department were encouraged to render such help as lay within their power in their off duty hours.

OUTSIDE WORK

During the years of inadequate pay numbers of members of the Police Department, attracted by the opportunities of getting much higher pay elsewhere, resigned. Others asked for and received extended leaves of absence, having in view the same object. Various officers secured outside employment during their off hours, thus supplementing the pay which they were receiving from the city. The idea of a police officer having any interest in branches of employment other than police work, is, of course, fundamentally wrong; and this fact is recognized in this Department, as well as other police departments. "No man can serve two masters." The public cannot be best served by an officer who is giving police work only a part of his attention. Permission to accept outside work was only justified by abnormal conditions existing in the past.

During last February, hundreds of applications for positions in the Department having been received, the conditions in regard to employment were such that I thought it not just to the public to permit officers regularly employed by the city to compete with unemployed persons in respect to this so-called outside work. I accordingly issued a special order requiring all members of the Department to devote their entire time and attention to the affairs of the Department, and to engage in no other business.

BUREAU OF THE CHIEF

RALPH S. BOYSEN, Executive Secretary

With the institution of the Inspection District under the command of an Inspector and the consequent relief of the Bureau of the Chief from the burden of routine matters originating within the Department, an opportunity was given to greatly widen the proper scope of the Bureau itself. In addition to those matters the responsibility for which under the law is placed personally upon the head of the Department, such as requisitions, supplies and accounts and which naturally belonged in this division of the Department's work, all matters arising outside the Department other than the formal report of offences committed (which are referred directly to the Detective Bureau) have been cared for by this Bureau. These matters are presented to the Bureau both by personal calls and written correspondence, and the Executive Secretary arranged to have the office open for the accommodation of the public every day of the year. As a result of this arrangement of the work it has been possible to give a vastly increased service. It was the aim of this Department to answer promptly and accurately all inquiries of a reasonable nature, not only in the correspondence, but also in the personal interviews and to give inquirers prompt action or immediate replies to all questions concerning investigations and such activities of the Department as it is proper to make public.

During the so-called crime wave throughout the United States and the world, the correspondence with out-of-town departments suddenly increased by more than 200 per cent. In most cases heads of other Departments sought information concerning persons believed to be in Los Angeles, or asked for co-operation in meeting some important police problem. It was manifestly impossible for the Chief to dictate all answers to such letters, but after making clear his policy and views on the work, it was possible for the Executive Secretary to collect information and dictate direct replies.

In November, 1920, arrangements were made by which a careful system of accounting for money received could be maintained. In the Secretary's office books were opened in which were recorded all checks received from any division of the Police Department, and where currency was sent in the mail, the name of the sender together with the serial numbers of the certificate were placed in the book. Not only were receipts of money recorded under heading of each date, but also an alphabetical list of senders of checks or currency was maintained.

Following the recording work done in the Secretary's office and the marking and assigning of currency or checks for the proper destination, the filing clerk, upon whom falls the duty of delivering all communications or inclosures received in the Chief's office, made a separate and independent record which was designed to be a perfect check of the records kept in the Chief's office. During more than eight months in which the accounting work was done under the new system, there was no record of any check, money order or enclosed currency going astray.

A new system of accounting for money received in payment for purpose of carrying concealed deadly weapons was derived at the same time. To begin with, it was ordered that no "gun permits" be granted unless the applicant presented letters or recommendations from Police Officers, or officers of the Federal, State, County or City Governments showing a good reason why the applicant should carry a weapon. Most of the "gun permits" were issued to peace officers, watchmen, cashiers of banks or similar institutions where large sums of money had to be protected. The old method by which the Secretary to the Chief collected money when issuing "gun permits" was abolished. When the certificate granting any applicant permission to carry a weapon was issued the applicant was escorted to the accountant's office where he paid the $3.00 annual fee to the accountant, and the money received was immediately recorded and marked on the duplicate permit retained by the Police Department. In this way it was certain that not only all books were balanced but also that those who obtained "gun permits" at the Chief's office would not feel they were paying a fee or gratuity to that office.

In most Police Departments it has been found that the widespread and sometimes careless use of the Chief's facsimile signature tends to cause confusion, and sometimes results in abuses.

November 2nd, 1920, the Chief abolished the use of the facsimile signature for any purpose other than the pay roll and card announcements of complaints and warrants held by his Department in cases of traffic violations.

With the abolition of the facsimile signature for general uses in the Department it was necessary to devise some means of having all letters of all divisions and squads of the Police Department read and signed before they were sent out. The Chief designated the Secretary as the person to receive all official letters written by any member of the Department whatsoever. The Secretary was also authorized to sign the name of the Chief, but to make no attempt whatever to imitate the personal signature of the Chief. Thus it was possible to have a hand-written signature to each official communication. The general public does not pay much attention to letters which bear a stamped or facsimile signature. Also it sometimes happens that if a careless clerk or secretary writes a letter and fails to make a notation showing by whom it was dictated and by whom written, the use of a rubber stamp signature makes it difficult to locate the writer of the communication.

The Chief made himself thoroughly familiar with the signature and the general handwriting of the Secretary and thus had a perfect check on all letters sent out. He also instructed that when there was any doubt concerning a matter of policy or the tactfulness of a letter, it be submitted to him. It can be easily understood that the Chief of Police had a large amount of correspondence which needed his individual attention, and that it was necessary for him to reserve his personal signature for the vast bulk of official paper which he alone is permitted by law to sign. While a Chief of Police in a city the size of Los Angeles, with an inadequate number of men, never has enough time to attend to all the things he believes needs his immediate attention, the increased scope of the duties of his Secretary permitted the Chief to give more time to meeting the general public and to keeping in touch with members of the Department.

Another advantage of this new system of handling letters was that it made every person in the Department who writes a letter or communication feel that it would likely come to the personal attention of the Chief. Another added advantage was that where any officer might be careless of spelling or construction, and the writer of the letter might otherwise have stamped it with the Chief's name and sent it out, an impression of illiteracy might have been conveyed; now, the Chief is able to protect his office. In an emergency he could have the letter rewritten without giving offence to the original writer, and since all incoming mail is carefully indexed in the filing room of the Bureau of the Chief, a check is kept on all mail received, and on all communications, reports, complaints, applications, and permits. Thus when a letter left the Chief's office its authenticity and its completeness, relating to the letter originally received can be quickly established. A highly important detail of this Bureau is the search and missing detail. While a majority of the letters of inquiry received have no real connection with police work, there nevertheless is a great need, from the standpoint of human charity and kindness of having an investigation made and the result thereof communicated to those who seek to locate a missing husband, wife, father, brother, son or daughter, and many soldiers became through some mischance lost or out of touch with their relatives. These are located by this detail or put in touch with various soldiers' and sailors' welfare or employment bureaus seeking them.

Considering the number of letters received, in which inadequate details, description or other information written therein, the Search-Missing detail has been successful to a marked degree. It also soon developed that while the work of the searching officers was originally undertaken as a matter of simple charity, the hunt often put the searchers on the track of felons who had intentionally disappeared after having committed some crime. The results of the work of this detail brought much happiness to relatives who sought information concerning members of families who had disappeared. The Search-Missing Detail made many other important arrests.

Detective Sergeants Ben McCan and C. A. S. Hiekok, who handled for the Search-Missing Detail important angles of Federal investigation, and difficult feats of detective work, are deserving of commendation for their attention to this assignment, which, while productive of regular results, obtained little publicity. Officers Chester Lloyd and Grant Roberts, Jr., in charge of the personal investigations which called for immediate answers, prepared the notations and other data necessary for prompt action in writing and answering such "search inquiries" by the stenographers in the Chief's office with commendable intelligence and speed.

The records appended in the annual report show the remarkable success of the search and missing detail, but cannot indicate the vast amount of relief brought to those who secured information sought, relative to those from whom they had been separated.

CITIZEN POLICE BODIES

As a temporary measure, until by proper legislation an adequate force of trained and paid professional officers can be provided, logic seems to suggest the acceptance of the aid of public-spirited citizens who are willing to enroll themselves in a voluntary organization to supplement in any available way, in times of emergency, the present regular forces.

Several suggestions along these lines were made during the last winter months. The Veterans of Foreign Wars, James B. Gresham Post, of Los Angeles, volunteered in a body and their proffer of services was gratefully received. While no occasion for the use of their time presented itself, the help of men such as these, tried by the test of military service, was of great value. Again, when Mrs. Gladys Witherell, a resident of Hollywood, was abducted from her home there and detained for several days by miscreants, a public appeal for aid in the form of searching parties was made through the press, with especial request made of the members of the Hollywood Post of the American Legion. The members of this body turned out by the hundreds and made a thorough and painstaking search of the Hollywood hills through all of a rainy Sunday; and the fact of the widespread search in progress coming to the knowledge of the kidnapers, they were thrown into consternation and hastened attempts to establish communication with the relatives of the victim, looking toward the collection of a ransom. The result was that they stepped right into the police net and were seized by the officers who had kept vigil unremittingly from the time of the report of the disappearance of the lady.

Experience has shown, nevertheless, that however public spirited men may be, and however willing to unselfishly give of their own time in case of emergency, this means cannot be depended upon to give the steady, day in and day out service in an organized form, which is essential to a proper degree of police protection in a city of this size. Real police protection, as distinguished from a less complete form of service, depends upon a steady and unremitting pressure of the forces of the law in opposition to the forces of evil, which are never at rest. Eternal vigilance is necessary in combatting lawlessness, no less than it is the price of liberty, and this vigilance and steady pressure can only come from the efforts of men whose whole time and attention is given to this work; in other words, men who are paid to act as the city's guardians. We cannot get something for nothing in any of the walks of life and there is no more reason why the citizens should be expected to do their own police work (and a comparatively small number would, in the nature of things, volunteer for this dangerous and arduous work) than that we should ask them to revert to the days of the volunteer fire department or to personally undertake to perform any other of the governmental functions for which they are assessed and pay taxes.

With my thanks for the generous co-operation of yourselves, the public press and the leaders of our civic activities, the foregoing is

Respectfully submitted,

LYLE PENDEGAST,
Chief.

CHIEF LYLE PENDEGAST

DEPARTMENT INSPECTOR

A. W. MURRAY

Inspector of Police

November 1, 1920, the office of Inspector of Police was created. The first official act of Chief of Police Lyle Pendegast was to appoint Captain A. W. Murray, Commander of Central Police Division, and a veteran officer, who on many occasions had been acting Chief of Police, as Department Inspector.

The experience of several Chiefs of Police had shown the need, and almost the necessity, of having an officer designated who would rank second only to the Chief of Police and who would have time and authority to give careful attention to personnel matters, and through frequent inspections to maintain the morale of the various divisions.

Prior to the time when a Department Inspector was created there were many cases of undetermined jurisdiction between division commanders which it was found difficult to decide. The very exacting nature of the duties of a Chief of Police make it impossible for him to investigate complaints against officers, the authenticity of commendations received and the general work of all individuals in the department. Also, in the past, persons who sought permits for parades, permits to take moving pictures or still pictures within the city limits, or who had various requests which needed investigation, crowded the outer office of the Chief of Police, often delaying officials who had important business which called for immediate attention. Under the new system all of these matters are referred to the Department Inspector and all applications for employment, reinstatement or leave of absence must first be investigated and approved by him before they are brought to the attention of the Chief of Police. Under present conditions the Department Inspector is also the Commander of Central Division, but it is the intention of the Chief to rearrange the divisions and, if possible, obtain two more captains so that the Inspector may devote himself solely to his duties as personnel officer and have more time to review the men of the various divisions and to confer with division commanders. At the same time the Chief has recommended that the captain holding the rank of Department Inspector be given increased salary which will be next in amount to that received by the Chief of Police. At the present time the City Council has before it a recommendation for increased salary to the Department Inspector and plans have been completed which, in the event of favorable action by the Council, will increase his duties and authority.

Because of the realignment of duties in the department and the tremendously increased volume of correspondence and general business the Chief found it necessary not only to have an officer designated as second in command, but to call upon his secretary to fill the duties which approximate those of a department adjutant or the adjutant of a regiment in military service. This change permitted the Department Inspector more time to his increased duties and also enabled the Chief's office to handle the bulk of correspondence within the department, gun permits, publication of The Daily Bulletin, search and missing investigations, merit system, personal files and a vast minutiae of detail work which nevertheless requires immediate attention.

TRAFFIC DIVISION

JAMES McDOWELL, Captain

Commanding

The Traffic Division consists of 89 members, as follows:

- 1 Captain.
- 1 Lieutenant.
- 2 Field Sergeants.
- 1 Motorcycle Sergeant.
- 20 Speed Motorcycle Officers.
- 1 Speed Motorcycle Officer Serving Warrants.
- 4 Railway and Park Officers.
- 2 Traffic Investigators.
- 1 Stenographer.
- 6 Mounted Officers.
- 1 Officer detailed on court work.
- 1 Officer detailed on desk in office.
- 48 Crossing Officers.

Despite an increase of traffic congestion and accidents, the Division obtained but two more members than last year. The number of arrests and cash fines turned in show the Traffic Division to be more than self-sustaining. In all fairness to the citizens and for better protection and the good of all concerned, the Division should be increased at least 100 men.

The total traffic accidents for the year just ended were 24,412, as against 17,728 for the year ending June 30, 1920. The number of persons injured was 5027, as against 4249 for the previous year, and the number fatally injured, 172 as against 128.

Attention is called to the fact that the total cash fines for arrests made by speed officers was $102,714.00, which is an increase over last year of $26,750.00.

The cash fines obtained through arrests made by the crossing officers amounted to $139,478.00, which is an increase of $66,273.00 over last year.

Following numerous tests of various devices designed to regulate traffic and protect the public, the City Council, acting on recommendations of the Traffic Bureau and the Chief, accepted the Acme Signal System. These signals now are being installed throughout the congested district of the city, and during the few months' tests that have been given on two of the main business thoroughfares, movement of vehicular and pedestrian traffic was greatly facilitated, and at the same time the street cars have less difficulty in maintaining their schedules.

CITY JAIL FOR MEN AND WOMEN

JOHN L. SHAND, Lieutenant

Chief Jailer

All adults arrested in the Central, Lincoln Heights, Hollywood, and Boyle Heights Divisions, as well as by the Detective, Traffic, License and Juvenile Bureaus, are confined in the City Jail at Police Headquarters until tried, admitted to bail, or transferred to the County Jail to await trial on felony charges. Persons arrested in the University and in the San Pedro Divisions (except women and felony suspects), are confined at those stations until tried, after which they are forwarded to the City Jail for final disposition. Juvenile offenders are taken to Juvenile Hall, pending trial in the Juvenile Court.

The proper sanitation and upkeep of all buildings and offices at Police Headquarters, Central Jail, and the various sub-stations, except Lincoln Heights, devolves upon the Chief Jailer. These duties include all janitor work, painting, carpenter work, plumbing repairs and renewals; proper feeding of the prisoners and supplying clothing to those in need. All applicants for food and lodgings are cared for at the City Jail. Practically all of the labor is done by trusted short-term prisoners, carefully selected as to their trades, including the cleaning and oiling of the numerous motor vehicles, keeping of the jail records, and all kitchen work.

Immediately upon arrest, all women prisoners, as well as those sentenced in Women's Court to serve sentences for misdemeanors, are incarcerated in the women's section of the jail, situated on the third (top) floor of the jail building, where they are required to perform all janitor work, mending, sewing and laundering pertaining to that section, under competent matrons, and other important domestic services. Employment is furnished, also, in making towels for the Jail, Park, Health and other City Departments.

For entertainment during leisure hours the inmates of this section have the use of a piano and phonograph, with a supply of well selected sheet music and records of a wholesome character.

Religious services by various denominations are held in the jail several times during the week and on Sundays.

Night school classes are conducted by competent teachers for the benefit of such inmates as prefer elementary instruction.

The tabulated statistics given below by the Chief Jailer show the number of incarcerations during the fiscal period just closed, as compared with previous periods:

	1918-1919	1919-1920	1920-1921
Drunks—
Men	6,128	2,263	4,068
Women	240	149	142
Felonies and Misdemeanors—
Men	6,932	6,803	8,809
Women	881	828	1,025
Totals	14,191	10,043	14,044

Racial Segregations (both sexes)—

Whites			10,310
Negroes	861	665	886
Mexicans	3,008	1,801	2,657
Orientalis	440	273	191

Voluntary Lodgers (both sexes).....	114	812	1,013
-------------------------------------	-----	-----	-------

Total number of meals served to prisoners, including substations, 133,755.

Among the improvements effected at the Boyle Heights, University, and Hollywood Substations may be mentioned the removal recently of the obsolete and inadequate gasoline storage tanks and pumps, and the installation instead, of more up-to-date apparatus of sufficient capacity to meet their requirements for several years to come; also the thorough re-painting of the floors, cells, walls and office fixtures, as well as all essential plumbing repairs. Practically all of the labor being performed by selected "trusties," under the supervision of the Chief Jailer and his assistants.

I think it worthy of remark that the duties performed by these prisoners represent, it is estimated, a saving annually to the taxpayers of a sum somewhat in excess of $20,000.

COMMENDATIONS

SAN PEDRO DIVISION

W. L. SPELLMAN, Captain

Commanding

This Division consists of twenty-five square miles and includes San Pedro, Point Firmin, East San Pedro, Terminal Island, Wilmington, East Wilmington, Wilmington Park, Thenard and Harbor City, with a total population of about 70,000.

The personnel of the Division consists of one Captain, one Lieutenant, three Sergeants, one Detective-Sergeant, one Policewoman and thirty-four Patrolmen.

In this Division is included all the water-front of Los Angeles Harbor, comprising many miles of wharves, and many lumber yards, warehouses and freight sheds. As a natural sequence the population is cosmopolitan.

In addition to the other activities located here, four large shipyards, employing several thousand men, are running their full capacity.

Fort McArthur, the Submarine Base and the Naval Training Reserve Camp are responsible for the continued presence of about 2,000 men in the United States uniform.

The underworld never ceases in its efforts to secure a foothold in this vicinity, but records of Army and Navy Hospitals and of welfare units show the efforts of the Police Department in combating these undesirables.

Two call autos and one ambulance, and one Police Patrol Boat are attached to this Division.

HOLLYWOOD DIVISION

DAVID L. ADAMS, Captain

Commanding

This Division consists of Hollywood proper, containing about twenty-three square miles, bounded by Hoover, Temple and the City Limits to Caluenga Pass. In addition it comprises the San Fernando Valley Annexation District, including Van Nuys, Owensmouth and a portion of San Fernando, which brings the total area up to one hundred ninety-five square miles.

The population of this Division is approximately seventy thousand.

The personnel of this Division consists of one Captain, two Lieutenants, three Sergeants, three Detective-Sergeants, twenty-four Patrolmen, two Chauffeurs and one Clerk-Stenographer, assigned to duty as follows: One Captain, two Lieutenants, two Detective-Sergeants, twenty-two Patrolmen, two Chauffeurs and one Clerk-Stenographer to Hollywood proper; one Patrolman to Van Nuys, one Patrolman to Owensmouth and one Detective-Sergeant to San Fernando. The men stationed at the outlying districts have call machines as means of transportation.

JUVENILE BUREAU

LIEUT. H. I. NICHOLSON

Commanding

The personnel of the Juvenile Bureau consists of one Lieutenant, four Patrolmen, nine Policewomen and one Stenographer-Clerk.

In general this Bureau has to deal with minor children, who are placed under arrest by any officer of the Department, or against whom reports are received from parents or other citizens. The Bureau also deals with adults against whom reports and charges are received wherein children are involved.

The officers of the Bureau have been very successful in the past year in restoring lost boys and girls. There is also a great amount of social service work done by the members of the Bureau in the way of adjusting family troubles, securing employment and homes for many.

WOMEN'S PROBATION BUREAU

MRS. MINNIE BARTON

Probation Officer

This Bureau aids women who have been convicted in the Police Courts, judicial clemency being extended to those who have made mistakes and who have violated the law.

THE WOMEN'S COURT

The number of cases handled was 1324. Four hundred and seventy-four of these women were arrested for immoral conduct and were ordered to have a physical examination by the doctor representing the Board of Health of this city, so that the spread of infectious diseases might be kept under control; 279 of these cases were sent to Los Feliz Hospital for treatment, where they have received the best of medical attention by all up-to-date methods without any cost to the individual, who, on receiving her discharge, went forth without being a menace to society; 195 of those examined showed blood test negative.

NUMBER OF PROBATIONERS

Total number on probation at the present time is 274; number placed on probation during the year 150. Total number of reports made to this office by probationers during the year, 2202; employment was secured for 75 women, and 53 were sent to their homes in other cities.

DRINK AND DRUG USERS

Number arrested on the above charges is 194. The use of drink and drugs is on the increase, but we still have with us daily the old-timers who, by hook or crook, get the drink and drugs. Some institution or farm should be established where proper and lasting treatment would be given this unfortunate class of offenders who seem unable to help themselves. These women are human beings, but are given no consideration. There are hospitals for the treatment of cats and dogs, but none for the treatment of the drink and drug habit. The sending to prison or jail of these addicts is of no use, as nothing is done for them, not even employment is given them.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Appreciation should be given to the substantial support given by the Big Sisters League, organized several years ago to support the Minnie Barton Training Home. In addition to feeding and clothing, the Big Sisters League has raised $7000 during the past year and we have purchased the properties at 2116 and 2118 Trinity street. Mayor Snyder gave us $500 for the building fund, and the City Council allowed us $500 for groceries, balance of all other moneys expended being donated by the general public. This is the only city in the United States that maintains a home for women brought into the Police Court. Mrs. Anita Baldwin is now building and equipping a $4000 model kitchen, which is so much needed. When this kitchen is completed, the Board of Education will place a domestic science teacher in the Home. At the present time we have night school, teachers being furnished by the Los Angeles Board of Education. These avenues of training are great assets to the Training Home, as it teaches these women to be self-sustaining and again become law-abiding citizens.

One hundred and twenty-seven women were admitted to the Minnie Barton Training Home during the past year. There are no locks or bars at this Home, and those taken are placed on their honor. Only eight of these women have left the Home without permission. The small percentage who have failed to grasp and to take advantage of the opportunity offered them for their rehabilitation is positive proof that the probation system, while not perfect, is a long stride in the right direction. Human interest and kindly advice of the probation officers is the method used to keep the probationers in the straight and narrow path.

During the past year, through the substantial support of Mrs. R. L. Gifford of Pasadena, there was established the Bide a Wee Home at 1412 Constance street, this city, where destitute young mothers and babies are cared for. This is the only Home of the kind in the city where the mother can keep her children with her and be employed at the same time. Twenty-four women and babies have been cared for since the opening, February 17th, this year.

The Elks' Lodge of the city gave aid to poor families at Christmas time. Of the 3500 garments given out during the year by this Department, 2000 of these (new) were given by the Elks. They also provided a treat for each inmate of the Women's Department at the City Jail, Los Feliz Hospital, Minnie Barton Home and the Big Sisters League and Children's Home at Ventura, California.

Co-operation of the County Charities greatly facilitated the handling of our work and excellent results were obtained by their helping destitute cases and granting half rate tickets when necessary.

VICE SQUAD

H. J. TOOMEY, Lieutenant

Detailed

Protecting the public morals by the suppression of gambling, prostitution and the illegal sale of liquor is the purpose for which this squad is detailed. It operates in all parts of the city, and disposition of the cases indicates a markedly increased success in prosecutions.

A very material increase in the amounts demanded for bail has resulted in a great increase of fines imposed by the courts and a corresponding decrease in bail forfeitures. For the same reason days served in jail have almost doubled. It is cheaper for the lawbreaker to go to court and plead guilty than to jump his or her bail. This eliminates the old criticism that frequent arrests and small bail amounted to the police licensing these classes of misdemeanants.

Particular attention has been given to court prosecutions, as shown in the table following:

	Arrests	Conviction	Fines and Forfeits	Days Susp.	Days Served	$ Suspended	Cases Dismissed	Juveniles	Federal Court	Superior Court	Cases Pending

BUREAU OF STATISTICS

L. W. LYONS
Police Statistician

The purpose of this Bureau is to locate and record all criminal acts reported.

The theory of police procedure recognizes numerous methods of classifying crime. The two of most utility are, classification by geographical and seasonal determinations. While thefts of automobiles, burglaries, hold-ups and other serious acts of cupidity are most prevalent in the months of November, December and January, other criminal activities, such as pickpockets and larceny are prevalent in all months of the calendar.

Therefore, it being possible to localize the month in which the high number of crimes may be anticipated, it is also possible by the means of maps to demonstrate where they are most likely to occur and in this way the police are able to plan a campaign in advance and have their forces prepared to take the offensive rather than the defensive against criminals.

A comparison of crime is indicated in the table following:

	1920-21	1919-20	1918-19	1917-18	1916-17	1915-16
Burglaries	5,085~	4,098	2,796	4,190	3,306	3,869

Note—278 cases of adults above 20 years of age not included in above table.

There were 33 cases transferred to different departments for investigation and prosecution. To Juvenile Bureau, 24; to Detective Bureau, 2; to Purity Squad, 1; to District Attorney's Office, 6.

The official workers of this bureau consist of City Mother, Assistant City Mother and Chief Investigator.

The Bureau is located at 310 Normal Hill Center and is a confidential office purposely removed from Police Headquarters so that those wishing advice may go without fear of publicity.

The work is entirely preventive and constructive, forestalling crime, besides preserving the moral welfare of girls and boys. All cases needing prosecution are referred to the proper departments. The lack of corroborative evidence oftentimes prohibits prosecution, and many such cases are brought to this office for adjustment.

The City Mothers act as mediators in domestic cases where there are children involved. They aim to secure the desired results without court procedure, frequently bringing about the reconciliation of parents.

The Municipal Day Nursery, located at Normal Hill Annex, established through the efforts of the City Mothers, is doing splendid work caring for children whose mothers are at work. Three Nurses are in charge of this department.

An advisory board of ten representative women co-operates with this Bureau in creating an emergency fund with which to carry on the work. Part of this fund is being used to supply milk for many under-nourished babies that are brought to the attention of the office.

They have also been of great assistance to the Bureau in handling many outside problems which are a menace to juveniles.

The legal adviser appointed to this Bureau over a year ago has co-operated with the advisory board in a very helpful manner.

LICENSE INSPECTOR BUREAU

H. McPHILLIPS

Inspector

The scope of the operations of this useful and important branch of the Police Department during the fiscal period just ended has been greatly augmented by the passage, on January 1, 1920, of the so-called Occupational License Ordinance enacted by the City Council to provide additional revenues, and superceding to a large extent all license taxes collectible under Police supervision during former years. This change has resulted in bringing under control of the bureau practically every person, firm or corporation conducting business for profit within the boundaries of the corporate limits of Los Angeles city. The sweeping changes effected in the manner and periods for the collection of these licenses (most of these licenses being payable quarterly in advance), have added greatly to the work of the office, and necessitated the addition of three men to its personnel; and any detailed enumeration of classes of business and amounts paid by same for the period for purposes of comparison with previous years under the old ordinances would be futile.

Among the principal items showing the volume of business handled are:

Total value of licenses issued.....	$1,754,102.50
Total value of delinquent licenses reported by the City Clerk and investigated by this bureau.....	265,435.08
Total value of above licenses collected.....	$220,644.15
Total value of licenses discontinued (out of business).....	42,776.75
Total value of collections from new business.....	24,351.48
Total number of arrests by the bureau.....	160
Total value of fines and bail forfeitures.....	1,253.00
Total value of collections from all sources.....	$246,248.61

DETECTIVE BUREAU

CHARLES R. MOFFATT

Captain Commanding

The Detective Bureau consists of one Captain of Detectives, three Detective Lieutenants, forty-eight Detective Sergeants, two Patrol Sergeants, thirty Patrolmen, one Juvenile Probation Officer, one Identification Clerk, four Clerk-Stenographers and two Telephone Clerks. This makes a total of ninety-two men.

Out of this body are detailed the following squads, who have made special reports: Flying Squadron, Pawn, Second-hand and Junk, Identification Bureau and Auto Theft Bureau.

During the year, the Bureau, on description, arrested sixty-seven fugitives for other States. These prisoners were extradited by the several States as follows:

Arizona.....3	Michigan.....1	Oklahoma.....2
Arkansas.....1	Maryland.....1	Pennsylvania.....2
Colorado.....4	Minnesota.....2	Rhode Island.....1
Dist. of Columbia.....2	Missouri.....2	Tennessee.....1
Georgia.....1	Massachusetts.....4	Texas.....4
Illinois.....5	New York.....3	Utah.....3
Iowa.....3	New Mexico.....1	Wyoming.....2
Indiana.....1	Nevada.....2	Washington.....2
Kansas.....6	Ohio.....2	Wisconsin.....2
Louisiana.....1	Oregon.....2

The offenses charged were as follows:

Abortion.....1	Fictitious Checks.....17
Adultery.....2	Forgery.....38
Assault to Murder.....2	Grand Larceny.....89
Assault with Deadly Weapon.....2	Inducing Witness to Leave State.....2
Bigamy.....2	Insane.....4

Defrauding Inn Keeper.....1	O. M. F. P.....22
Embezzlement, Felony.....32	Rape.....9
Escapes.....6	Robbery.....14
False Pretenses.....1	Vag-Lowd.....1
Failure to Provide.....33	White Slavery.....5

Arrests for Felonies and Misdemeanors were made for the authorities of Counties in California, outside the County of Los Angeles, as follows:

Fresno.....8	Orange.....4	San Joaquin.....6
Glenn.....1	Placer.....1	Santa Barbara.....4
Imperial.....1	Plumas.....1	San Marin.....1
Inyo.....1	Riverside.....2	Tulare.....1
Kern.....10	San Bernardino.....7	Ventura.....5
Madero.....1	San Diego.....12	Visalia.....1
Merced.....3	San Francisco.....10	Yolo.....1
Mendocino.....1

Last year sixty-five Fugitives were arrested for other States, as compared with sixty-seven this year; eighty-two arrests for other Counties in this State as compared with ninety-nine last year.

While the detection of crime and the arrest of perpetrators is the primary function of this important Bureau, which is constantly alert and ready to answer calls in all parts of the city, one of its chief services is the recovery of stolen property. This is divided into two classes: miscellaneous property and motor vehicles.

In the first class it should be noted that property lost is reported at the owner's valuation and property recovered at the appraised valuation. The last named is usually materially less than the first. Further, property recovered by the owner or through private agencies is seldom reported as found to this Bureau. These two factors, in a large measure, account for the discrepancy between the value of property reported lost and that reported recovered in the table following. Value of property stolen, exclusive motor vehicles and bicycles:

1920	July	1090	$ 88,625
	August	1026	47,805
	September	928	74,580
	October	998	72,500
	November	1240	79,426
	December	1260	75,250
1921	January	1548	135,800
	February	1304	179,200
	March	1156	153,600
	April	922	215,000
	May	946	102,375
	June	960	100,050
Total.....		13,378	$1,324,211

Value of property recovered, $650,000.00.

Property reported lost or stolen in one month, may be recovered the following or not until several months later, hence no monthly statement of property recovered is given.

POLICE COURTS JUDGE JCSEPH CHAMBERS Presiding

Of the five Police Courts, four are held at Central Headquarters and one magistrate sits at San Pedro. This insures prompt trials and makes it possible for witnesses to attend court in the district where the offense was committed.

The fiscal year 1919-20 shows a marked increase in the number of cases handled by these courts and almost double the amount in cash fines.

POLICE PRINTING BUREAU J. D. THOMAS Bulletin Clerk

The Police Printing Bureau is one of the important factors in the work of the Police Department. The compiling and printing of almost all the forms used in the department, the printing, distributing and mailing of The Daily Bulletin are the duties of this Bureau. One thousand Bulletins are issued daily. Of this number 70 are mailed daily and 125 once a week to the most important cities of the coast, the remaining 805 being distributed to each division of the department and officers throughout the city. Two hundred and eight forms are kept standing in the shape of electrotypes, thereby saving the cost and work of composition.

Owing to the increase in the personnel of the Department, arrests, accidents and the inauguration of the Merit System, there has been created and linotyped 20 forms, from which 36,100 impressions have been printed.

LOST PERSONS BUREAU

Letters from persons living outside the city, inquiring for lost relatives believed to be in Los Angeles, are referred to this bureau. Its efforts are not used to trace debtors or to secure evidence for use in divorce proceedings, though many such requests are made.

While this work is outside the scope of police activity, the fact that 881 persons were traced during the year seems ample justification for maintaining the bureau. Each individual found means a reunited family. Every inquiry is answered within five days.

The officer detailed uses his own automobile; the Department furnishing gasoline and oil.

VACATIONS AND DAYS OFF

The regulations of the Police Commission governing the Police Department employees provide that all employes are entitled to a vacation of fifteen days annually; and, that Officers shall have four days off each month in place of Sundays, to be taken at the discretion of Commanding Officer.

Under these regulations vacation and days off are not cumulative, but are to be taken in the year or month in which they are due.

No additional men are employed to take the place of employees on vacation or days off.
